Remembrance Day 1955

It is simple enough to go into the story of Armistic Day. Why we observe it... with that tribute we gather at the cenotaphs and the graves of our soldiers. But if our revenge ends there, we've accomplished nothing, and all the fighting that has been done has been in vain; all that has been fought for becomes a dream, still in the far distant future. Now, in these troubled times we surely realize that the quest for peace did not end with the last shot that was fired, that we didn't achieve the glowing goal of peace with the end of hostilities. Let us resolve this day to turn our hearts... our prayers... our work towards a world peace... a lasting peace. Let us renew our pledge and our faith as we pause in respect for those who died for us, to assure them and ourselves that they shall not have died in vain... that world peace shall become a reality forever.

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing,
fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
in Flanders Fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you, from falling hands, we throw
The torch, be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow,
In Flanders Fields.

I Am A Canadian

I am a Canadian living in comfort won for me and guaranteed by the sacrifice made by thousands of Canadians that fought the enemies of Democracy during two world wars.

"I am a Canadian": I am proud to take these words for my own, proud to be part of a great hope that man is and of right ought to be free. I am a Canadian free to work, to build, to speak and to worship. I have faith in Canada because I know that Canada is right, because I believe in freedom. I am proud of Canada for thousands have lived for it, thousands have sacrificed for it, thousands have strived for it and thousands have died for it.

In the light of those sacrifices I am proud to say I am a Canadian.

Legion President Gives Remembrance Day Message

John Kulig, President of the local Branch No. 9 of the Canadian Legion today issued a final appeal to all citizens, asking them to wear a poppy on Remembrance Day.
Mr. Kulig called on all veterans to set an example by wearing the memorial flower. "Let us show that we remember and honor those who served by our side and gave their lives for Canada," he said.
"Most people," he said, "wear a badge or emblem on their lapel which proclaims membership in one organization or another. Through such emblems they make known their beliefs and principles."
"The greatest beliefs and principles of all are those for which men die," Mr. Kulig continued. "Therefore let us for a few days proudly wear the badge of remembrance which symbolizes our faith in the ideals for which our fellow Canadians died."
"All veterans have a duty on Remembrance Day. That duty is to be among the first to pin a poppy on their lapel," Mr. Kulig concluded.

Remembrance Day Wreaths To Be Laid At Cenotaph Ceremony

The following wreaths will be laid during the cenotaph ceremony: Canadian Legion Branch No. 9, Alberta Government, Town of Coleman, The Polish Veterans, 31st Squadron R.C.E.M.E., Ladies Auxillary to Canadian Legion No. 9, Coleman Collieries and U. All other wreaths will be laid by members of the Canadian Legion for the other organizations. This is being done this year by popular request owing to the weather conditions. A complete list of all persons purchasing wreaths will follow in our next issue.

Poppy Fund Helps Prolong Child's Life Doomed Girl's Parents Thank Legion

Somehow in a small Canadian village an 11 year-old girl is living on borrowed time. She got a new lease on life recently but it was a short one. Yet her parents are grateful for the additional five, seven or maybe eight years which Kathie has to live. They are also grateful to the Canadian Legion Poppy Fund.

"If Kathie's story will help the sale of poppies in any way please feel free to use all of it," her father, a Lutheran minister, recently told the Legion. "Perhaps if the people know where the poppy funds are going it will help the Legion help other Kathies", he added.

Sickly Child
Kathie has been sickly for most of her 11 years. Although she was receiving treatments for a celiac condition, her case was not definitely diagnosed until a year ago. At that time her father took her to a local doctor, pointing out that Kathie was not responding to treatments or improving as she grew older.

A thorough examination suggested bronchiectasis of the lungs. The doctor referred the child to a specialist in the city. The specialist confirmed the diagnosis. But he also discovered that Kathie was suffering from a disease of the pancreas. Together these two diseases are fatal.

Doomed
In fact, it was felt that Kathie — being 11 years old — was making medical history. Most known cases seldom lived past infancy, according to the specialist. Hopefully, the father brought the child home to await the inevitable.

The 300 residents of the community waited with the parents, conscious of their inability to help. Some time later, an official of the local Legion branch read a magazine article dealing with the pancreas disease. Doctors in Boston had made considerable progress on some cases. It was later discovered that Toronto specialists were working with the Boston group

Kathie's father had not been established long as a minister. An army veteran and a prisoner-of-war, he had spent five months in hospital with a serious wound. After hospitalization he attended a Lutheran seminary. Kathie's lengthy illness, special medicines and care took most of their money. A trip to Toronto from one of the prairie provinces was beyond their means.

Legion Helps

The 30-member Legion branch immediately volunteered to supply the minister with money. The poppy fund — a trust account separate from actual Legion finances — amounted to $352. The Legion turned over all but $2 for the trip to Toronto. And shortly afterwards the Provincial Command partly reimbursed the branch.

Kathie got a reprieve in Toronto. The doctors were able to add an estimated eight years to her life. Had she not received the treatment, she would almost certainly have died much sooner. For her parents, the weeks of agonizing doubt are over. They know that everything possible has been done.

Kathie's story cannot have a happy ending. Yet, with treatment her health has improved and she is able to lead a near-normal life. Her parents are resigned to the ultimate outcome, but are thankful for the years which remain.

Every day from some 2,000 Legion branches across Canada, come other cases. Few are as pathetic as that of Kathie. Most of them have a happy ending. The money which goes to assist these people comes from the distribution of poppies. Most of the assistance you never hear about. But the poppy fund is there.

Tomorrow or next week another Kathie may come to your branch's attention. This time the ending might be different. You can help write that ending by buying a poppy.

Enough Canadians have gone to U.S. to repopulate Canada

Enough Canadians have emigrated to the United States in the last 135 years to populate the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and establish a city nearly the size of Metropolitan Vancouver, declares Canadian Press staff writer George Kitchen in a story from Washington.

It would take a statistician to figure it out but, if you took their offspring into account, the number of former Canadians and their descendants in the U.S. also probably could re-populate the whole of Canada with its 15,000,000 population.

The U.S. immigration service places at 3,307,836 the number of Canucks who have moved south of the border since 1820, the year immigration statistics first were compiled. The latest Canadian census figures put the population of the three Prairie provinces at 2,904,000 while metropolitan Vancouver numbers some 530,700.

The U.S. figures don't take into account those Canadians who emigrate to the U.S. stay a while and then pack up and go back home. The Canadian government estimates this return movement currently is running at about 4,000 a year.

But the U.S. totals do show that the flow of Canadians southward, long a problem for Canadian governments in their concern about the country's development and need for more people, is running strong—and rising.

More than 250,000 Canadians, 205,000 of them native-born, have crossed the border since the end of the Second World War. In the same period, approximately 85,000 Americans went north to take up permanent residence in Canada. This works out to three Canadians lost to the U.S. for every American emigrating to Canada.

After a 15-year lull through the depression and the war years, Canadian emigration to the U.S. picked up in 1946, jumping to the 20,000 and holding that pace until the early 1950s. It rose to 32,354 in 1952 and to 36,285 in 1953. The total eased to 34,873 in 1954, when a mild economic recession cut the movement on both sides of the border but officials expect it will

Oil business interests woken

NEW YORK—Tired of the same old ladylike job? Go into the oil business, girls, advises Edna Hurry, newly-elected president of the Desk and Derrick Clubs of North America.

There are at present 8,000 members of this unique organization, composed of women working in the oil industry. During their recent convention in New York, 900 of the girls represented clubs in 30 states and three Canadian provinces.

Jobs held by these women range from presidents of oil companies to secretaries and file clerks.

"We have a lot of girls who are engineers, geologists and chemists working in the oil business," says Miss Hurry, whose own job is in the personnel department of a New Jersey oil company. "Even those who have desk jobs find there's never a dull moment. Things just seem to happen in the oil industry."

Boy with two mouths said medical rarity

COLUMBUS, O.—The case of a boy with two mouths, a medical rarity, was described recently in Atlantic City, N.J., before the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery by Dr. Hugh C. Beatty, Columbus, O., surgeon, reports United Press.

The unidentified boy, now 12, is the son of a Canton, O., carpenter. He has recovered from the series of three operations begun when he was 18 months old and, with the exception of a faint jaw depression where the extra mouth had been, appears normal.

Beatty said the extra mouth was 1½ inches wide and had no direct connection with the true mouth.

The second mouth, however, was fully developed with lips, a tongue and at the time of surgery, tooth buds.

Although the tongues were not connected, Beatty said both apparently had a common nerve supply. When one tongue moved, the other moved correspondingly.

The first operation removed the extra tongue, gum and tooth buds. A second operation six months later removed the mouth's mucous membrane to prevent the flow of saliva inside the body cavity. The final operation, at the age of three, closed the extra mouth opening.

One other similar case is known, Beatty said. That occurred in Britain in 1948.

TRY AND STOP ME!

BY BENNETT CERF

A Brazilian coffee dealer assured a gathering that drinking 20 to 30 cups a day cured snoring.

"I know it cured me," he concluded.

"It did," corroborated his American wife. "Now he never snores any more. He just percolates."

A commuter had been promising a youthful neighbor a Davy Crockett outfit, but had forgotten day after day to bring the package out to Westport with him on the 5:15. The youthful neighbor showed signs of disillusionment. "By the time you remember to bring the stuff," he muttered one day, "Davy Crockett'll probably be dead."

Matt Weinstock tells of a head accountant who labored for a big publisher for 40 years. Every morning he unlocked his desk at 8:30 on the nose, peered into the centre drawer for a moment, then locked everything up again. What was in that centre drawer? Assistants, visiting salesmen, even the publisher himself, never came close to solving the mystery.

One day the accountant died suddenly and, after a decent interval, everybody rushed to try open the centre drawer. It was found to contain just one little slip of paper. Printed in capital letters there were the words: THE SIDE TOWARD THE WINDOW IS THE DEBT SIDE.

A Budapest merchant rushed into an eye and ear hospital demanding emergency service. "The symptoms have been growing ever since the Communies have been here," he wailed. "I just don't see what I hear!"

One of those babes who pose for "cheese-cake" publicity stunts in a Hollywood studio was named honorary police chief—just for laughs—of a very swanky suburb. She was mighty happy about the whole thing, explaining a delightedly, "Now I'll be able to get even with those nasty old producers. I'll pinch them!"

Churchill vetoes pub sign honor

ATLESBURY, Eng.—Sir Winston Churchill's fans in this sleepy Buckinghamshire town are disappointed. They won't be able to put the doughty old warrior's name on their pub sign.

When a new tavern was planned the suggestion arose, "Let's call it the Churchill Arms."

That's a big honor in Britain, where the best-loved personalities in history are immortalized in pub signs. It would be a man-sized job to count all the Lord Nelson taverns, the Dukes of Wellington—and even those named after an earlier Duke of Edinburgh.

But Churchill isn't having any. He wrote back to the brewers to say that while he is most appreciative of the offer, he would rather they found another name.

Phone installed despite protest

BECKENHAM, England.—Mrs. Evan Haines told the Associated Press here that there are 350,000 people on a waiting list for telephones, but the government is installing a telephone she doesn't want.

Mrs. Haines told this story: She saw a man digging a hole outside her apartment house and asked him what he was doing.

"Nothing to worry about lady," he said, "just laying on your new phone."

"But I don't want a telephone," "I've got my orders," said the workman, shrugging his shoulders and continuing his digging.

During the next few days more workmen came. They bored a hole through a garden wall, dug up part of the lawn, laid a cable and strung a wire up the side of the apartment building.

Mrs. Haines appealed to the local council, which owns the low-rent housing block.

"They said there was nothing they could do about it," she reported.

Asked about the telephone that Mrs. Haines does not want, a spokesman for the post office, which maintains Britain's state-owned telephone system, said:

"We know Mrs. Haines doesn't want a telephone, but in the future some other tenant of her flat may have different ideas."

Predict higher turkey prices

Higher turkey prices are predicted for this fall by the Saskatchewan Poultry Board in a release which urges marketing as the birds become ready.

The release states:

"Based on the number of poults hatched, the 1955 Canadian turkey crop will be an estimated 2.5 per cent smaller than last year. Saskatchewan's turkey crop is roughly the same. What is also important is that the American turkey hatch is down slightly—this decrease is mainly in light broiler turkeys. In view of these crop estimates, somewhat stronger prices are expected this year than prevailed in 1954. In 1954 about 33,000,000 pounds of turkeys were marketed in Canada and slightly over 5,500,000 pounds of evaporated turkey imported from the United States.

Evaporating plant.

"The Canadian turkey industry is gradually adjusting itself to meet the increasing demand for evaporated turkey. It is becoming more and more difficult to compete on the Eastern market with New York dressed birds. Eight evaporating plants are now established in Saskatchewan to process our turkeys.

"To permit these plants to operate efficiently and pay top prices to producers, the turkey marketing season must be extended. Turkeys should flow to these plants from now until Christmas in a steady volume. A short period of marketing in December will not permit evaporating these birds for the Christmas market.

"When turkeys reach the stage of maturity where they have the desired finish, they should be marketed. For well fed turkeys ought to be about 25 weeks for females and 23-30 weeks for toms. Delay in selling these turkeys will hold up processing as well as costing more for feed. Under no circumstances should poorly finished turkeys be marketed. Your best profit is in a well finished bird, bringing top grade. To avoid congestion at the killing plant, to cut down on shrinkage and to avoid disappointment at marketing time, contact your producer dealer early and arrange for a delivery date."

Predicts more winter work

Trade Minister C. D. Howe thinks the number of jobs in Canada next winter will be down from a year ago.

He told a press conference in Ottawa recently that employment in both Canada and the U.S. is the highest since the war days.

But he added: "You can't prevent unemployment in the winter in a country like Canada where the Great Lakes freeze up and you can't build highways."

The situation would be better next winter than it was a year ago, he predicted. He said the government has taken steps to take some of the "sting" out of the winter jobless situation. Last March the number of unemployed in Canada reached a post-war high of some 633,000—the number of persons seeking jobs in offices of the National Employment Service.

Can fear of injury be cured?

Fear of injury is common in sports, even among experienced athletes. This is a normal thing. It is not normal, however, when this fear becomes great enough to create tension and the inability to play with proper abandon and a carefree attitude.

Such obsessive fear can be caused by many things. There just isn't space enough here to deal with all of them (further information is available from Sports College). But here are some general tips that can help you or your athletes ease the fear problem.

1. The athlete who is in the best of physical condition and who has tried to develop a well-rounded physique is less likely to be injured.

2. Proper warm-up before practices and games will help prevent many injuries.

3. There is less likelihood of injury when equipment fits properly.

4. The athlete who plays with carefree abandon, letting the chips fall where they may, is much less likely to be injured than the one who plays cautiously, always watching for possible injury situations. The athlete who knows these things and tries to act accordingly will have more confidence in action; he knows he has done the things that will help him avoid injury. It helps to know, too, that real injuries are rare—insurance statistics show that more accidents take place right in the home.

If there is an unusual fear of injury, it is best to bring it out into the open and try to find what experiences or attitudes have created it. A good talk with a knowledgeable trainer or coach, or with the family doctor, often will fix things up.

More energy for studies

Now that school has started again and young athletes will have to mix football and studies, ways and means of recovering from workouts in time for studies become increasingly important.

In a special survey of this problem, athletes claimed that they could study better when they had tea to finish off the after-practice meal. This was backed up by the findings of Dr. Coleman H. Griffith, who reports in his "Psychology of Athletics": "Tea is an excellent mental and physical stimulant that has no later ill-effects."

It was found that tea, with lemon and honey for sweetening, appears to help the athlete regain his pep and alertness and generally hasten the recovery from fatigue. It is suggested, however, that tea be used as an "extra" and not as a substitute for such beverages as milk and fruit juice, which should be a regular part of the diet.

RICHMOND, Va.—Want a nice pet?

Try a groundhog, says Mrs. A. W. Bennett, who lives in nearby Henrico County. And she ought to know because Billy, her current groundhog pet, is the third she has had.

Billy, now four months old and weighing 16 pounds, has made friends with Mrs. Bennett's cats. He drinks milk heartily and eats a lot of bread. He is fully house-broken and knows his name.

Millionth migrant Australia bound

SYDNEY—Australia's millionth post-war migrant will reach Melbourne as a bride November 8. The millionth migrant is Barbara Ann Wood, 21, of Redcar, Yorkshire. She married Dennis Perrett, 25, also of Redcar, on September 17. Their voyage to Australia in the liner Oronsy will be their honeymoon.

Immigration Minister H. E. Holt said the government had selected Miss Wood as the millionth migrant because it was felt she and her fiancé typified the young, eager, enterprising migrants.

Redcar, their hometown, is only 10 miles from the birthplace of Captain James Cook, who discovered Australia in 1770.

British bulldog bred to standstill

LONDON—Dog lovers here are complaining that the bulldog—tough, bowlegged symbol of British courage—has been bred to a standstill and can hardly waddle to the nearest dog show states a Reuters report.

Breeders replied that the blame lies in the fashion for a shorter-bodied, more compact bulldog sought by fanciers here and abroad.

They said that as a result, the dog has become "accordioned" so that his short legs can hardly carry the broad hulk of his shoulders. The breeders added, however, that despite the animal's loss of mobility, his courage is as stout as ever.

A spokesman for a group of British dog lovers demanded that the breeders take action to reverse the trend and restore the bulldog to his former niche.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

ALLEGIANCE IS PRICE WE PAY FOR SALVATION

"Every man has his price" is a cynical observation which contains a grain of truth in that everything that is worth while costs something. This is as true of our soul's salvation and of our spiritual life as it is of worldly things.

God so loved the world that He gave His Son; Jesus died that we might have life and redemption; prophets, priests and saints have made their sacrifice of love for the heritage that we enjoy.

The Kingdom of God, which Jesus proclaimed and made the very center of His teaching and the goal of discipleship, Jesus assured us is not of this world. Its aims, its standards, its sense of worth and values—all are different from those of the kingdoms of earth. But the heavenly kingdom is like the kingdoms of earth in this, that it demands the full allegiance of those who would be its subjects.

We shall never see the church and Christianity effecting their full conquest over sin and evil, and performing their most influential part in building a better world, until those who would be Christians understand this better, and give themselves more fully to the faith that they profess.

There is a real cost of discipleship, of allegiance—but the pearl of great price is neither disillusioning nor is it disappointing.

Hog producers want freedom of open market

Ontario hog producers want the freedom of an open market and the chance of higher prices, Charles W. McInnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association said at Exeter, Ont., recently, according to a Canadian Press story.

"We have not had that freedom because the processors have been spending millions to keep hogs from going to the market—to keep hogs going direct to them," he said.

Speaking to a meeting of 700 producers of the Huron County Hog Producers' Association he said: "It is good business and we cannot blame them, but we want all hogs in a position so our marketing agencies can direct them to the packer who is willing to pay the highest price."

Jake Kohler, general manager of the co-operative, said a plan was already being worked out for better distribution of hogs. The plan would enable producers to claim a larger part of the selling price than at present.

New high for wheat stockpile

OTTAWA—Canada's 1955 wheat stockpile now is estimated at a record 992,000 bushels.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics revised its 1955 wheat crop estimate downward slightly but boosted the carryover figure to make for the new high.

The revisions put total stocks 10,000,000 bushels higher than the mid-August estimate and 9,000,000 higher than the previous record of 983,000,000 in 1953.

In its second seasonal forecast, the Bureau placed the wheat crop at 498,342,000 bushels—the eighth highest in history—but down 2,245,000 from the mid-August estimate of 500,587,000. The latest estimate is based on a Sept. 15 survey.

The carryover—amount carried over from the 1954 crop—was estimated at 493,726,000 bushels, the third highest on record and up 12,363,000 from the mid-August forecast.

Two Calgary Girls Return From Trip To Europe

By Linda Curtis

Two Calgary girls have just returned home after attending the world centennial of the YMCA in Paris and wandering around Europe by bus, train, plane and thumb. They are Paula Korcusk and Anne LaMarsh, enthusiastic members of the So-Ed group at the Y who paid their own way to the conference and sat in on the sessions.

"It was a tremendous experience," bubbled Paula when she dropped in at The Herald Thursday afternoon. "Young adults from 72 countries met and talked together. There were more than 100 Canadians and we felt it was a privilege to be part of it all. Whether or not any great decisions were reached at the conference, I think it does wonders for world relations when ordinary people can meet each other and exchange ideas. Apart from language we're all pretty much the same."

The language barrier was a small matter at the conference. The theme was "That We May All Be One" and to help bring about this ideal, a set-up of immediate translations was used, similar to that employed at the United Nations. Delegates could tune in on the speeches and hear them in their own language.

"Actually, even without the translations, we found the language difference mattered very little," said Anne. "We were always able to make ourselves understood in one way or another."

The sessions were held at the Palais des Sports in Paris, near the Eiffel Tower. The girls were billeted at the Foyer de Lyonnais with 400 delegates. The building is actually a school teachers' dormitory and was ideal for the two-week conference.

The first world conference of the YMCA was held in Paris 100 years ago.

"We weren't at that one, but with all the new drugs and things they're discovering, we might be at the next one," quipped Paula. "We're both ready to go back there anytime."

For the two girls, the trip was a dream of a lifetime. Anne had never been east of Regina and Toronto was the farthest Paula had been away from home. Eldon Harris and Frank Falwell two of the four official Y delegates left Calgary at the same time. Alex Rescki and Bill Williams joined the party in Montreal where they boarded the Saxonia for a quick trip to Liverpool.

"They said it was a record crossing. It just took us five days," Paula explained. "It was smooth and we had a wonderful time on board."

"We saw an iceberg just out from the coast a day or so, but that was the only excitement going over. Coming back we hit the tailend of a big storm and it was so rough we weren't allowed on deck. The steward kept saying to me 'Fight it off, fight it off' when I complained I was seasick."

After staying the night with friends in Liverpool, the girls decided to see Scotland and took off for Glasgow by bus.

"We saw Loch Lomond. Guess we must have taken the low road, because we were right by the water," quipped Anne. "We did stay overnight in a real castle. It's a youth hostel now. We tried thumbing our way to the next town, but we hit a bad time. It was a bank holiday week-end and all the cars were full. We stayed at Fort William one night. The hotels were full and we thought we'd have to sleep on a park bench. Finally a hotel manager's wife put us up in the office."

The girls got one ride in Scotland and that was on a load of bricks and cement. After that they gave up hitch-hiking.

A highlight of their trip was a visit to Stratford-On-Avon where they took turns standing in line for four hours to get tickets to a presentation of Macbeth in which Sir Lawrence Olivier and Vivian Leigh were playing. By a strange coincidence, they met Dan Davies from Calgary who is living in England now.

After four days in London, they took off by plane across the channel to Paris.

"We had too much luggage or we might have joined the marathon swimmers," laughed Paula.

"The best part of that trip was seeing the white cliffs of Dover I'd heard so much about."

Paula and Anne enjoyed their visit to Paris but were not overwhelmed by the city that's been immortalized in song and story. On the metro, which is the Paris subway, a young woman tried to pick Anne's purse. Luckily it was a shower bag and she swung it around in front of her. The girl calmly moved down the car and put her hand in another woman's purse.

"She was very smartly dressed. Maybe she was a model for some of those Paris designers," mused Anne. "But that didn't sour us on Paris. We enjoyed our visit but had the feeling the Parisians did not care much for tourists. We climbed up to the second platform in the Eiffel Tower, and that was high enough."

They visited the Louvre and saw the Mona Lisa. She's still smiling. When the conference was over Paula and Anne took a French bus tour of Italy.

"The French buses are fine but those Italian ones are wrecks!" said Paula. "Once near Pisa we were bouncing along sitting straight as sticks on the hard seats with the perpendicular backs when the bus suddenly swerved up on the sidewalk and crashed through into a sewer. Through it all the bus driver managed to smile. The funniest sight on the trip was in a rain storm. There were two men standing on the corner huddled under one umbrella, but they were not wearing any shoes!"

Rome is a city of fountains, according to these two Calgarians. They tossed their coins into several but their wish to go back to Italy hasn't come true yet.

While in Rome they also visited the Catacombs, the Colosseum and enjoyed the intricate Italian mosaic art. Paul attended mass at St. Peter's Church.

Another memory is of being in the middle of a traffic jam on the canal in Venice.

"At least they couldn't blame it on a woman driver there, anyway," laughed Paula. "It was amusing to see great barges loaded with garbage go floating by. But on the whole, Venice is a lovely place."

Switzerland enthralled both girls. The high standard of living and the bright, cleanliness of the towns appealed to them. In Geneva, overlooking beautiful Lake Geneva, they visited the U.N. building and also the headquarters for the YMCA and the YWCA.

In Germany they were chased by the police for hitch-hiking on a famous highway.

"There were so many cars on it, we thought it was the best place to get a ride. The policeman caught us and chattered away in German and thought we couldn't understand a word, we gathered we were in the wrong," declared Anne.

"We got a ride in a jeep to Worms but the driver was a former prisoner of war in the U.S. and was so interested in us being Canadians that he drove at a snail's pace and we thought we were never going to get there," Paula laughed.

Castles on the Rhine, windmills in Holland, the Black Forest in Germany, living on bread and cheese in Belgium when their money ran low... all these and hundreds of other memories of their trip are happily recalled by Paula and Anne.

"We had a wonderful time and we'd both love to go back. But we were glad to get home too, after three months so far away," smiled Paula. "After all, I guess there's something in that saying that new friends are silver and old ones are gold."

Paula Korcusk was formerly employed in the Coleman Post Office and her many friends will be pleased to hear of her trip.

C.P.R. To Sponsor Safety Campaign For Children

Hazards faced by children who play in or around railway property will be brought forcibly to the attention of school children, who reside in nearly every City, Town and village served by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the province of Alberta, in the near future, by means of a series of short, illustrated safety talks presented by the Canadian Pacific Railway's Investigation Department.

No branch of the railway is more concerned with the risks confronting youngsters, who innocently or wantonly endanger their lives and limbs by playing in railway yards or walking on tracks, than the railway police force, which considers the protection of human life and safety as important as the protection of the company's property. No branch of the railway is better qualified to talk about it.

Inspector H. W. Lambert, head of the C.P.R. Investigation Department in the Alberta District, addresses this appeal to the public:

"We are asking your help in keeping children from needlessly risking life and limb by using railway tracks and yards as a playground. We are also asking your co-operation in our educational campaign to prevent injuries to railway passengers and employees, and damage to railway property and equipment through the thoughtless acts of children. Serious accidents have resulted from throwing objects at trains, by placing obstructions on tracks, and by tampering with switches and signals.

As parents, guardians or simply as friends of children, you can do your part by teaching youngsters the dangers of playing on the right-of-way, or interfering with the operations of trains. Without your whole-hearted support and co-operation, our task of protecting the young from their inexperience and thoughtlessness will be very difficult. Will you help us to safeguard the lives and limbs of the children and prevent accidents to others using our railway? Insist that your children 'Play Safely and Keep Off the Tracks'.

For the past three years the Department of Investigation, as representatives of the C.P.R., has conducted an intensive campaign in the support of juvenile safety with special regard to railway operations and property.

With the whole-hearted support of parents, teachers and the majority of students, together with the Press, Radio and Safety organizations, Parents and Teachers Association, Home and School Associations, our efforts have been rewarded by the fact that in the years 1953, 1954 and to date (5 1955, no juvenile has been killed, or seriously injured, in Alberta as a result of an accident involving railway equipment or property.

For the second year in succession the C.P.R. has been voted the International Award of the National Safety Council, Chicago, Ill. for Public Safety Activities.

However gratifying the results may have been, together with the appreciation shown for our combined efforts, the C.P.R. realizes only too well that each year a new generation of children is growing up and that as they grow they are subject to all the hazards of childhood, especially on their way to and from school, and at play. This campaign is aimed to alert the parents and children and thus remove as many of these hazards as possible. Despite the time effort and expense involved, the Company feels that if only one child's life is saved, or an injury averted, this is the greatest reward that can be earned."

Alberta Coal Industry May Receive "Shot In Arm"

Alberta's coal industry may get a shot in the arm if a new coal sampling system being developed here is adopted, says a retiring new Canadian scientist who has been working on the project for almost five years.

Dr. John Visman, senior scientific officer of the field division of the federal department of mines and technical surveys, now is perfecting a more reliable system of sampling. He has already developed a cyclonic atomizer for asphalt now being tested in the briquetting industry.

Dr. Visman, who emigrated to Canada from The Netherlands in 1951, worked for years as an engineer with the Dutch state mines on revision of existing sampling specifications.

He expressed the hope that investigations in this field would lead to a general overhaul of the entire specification setting up a nation-wide introduction of the method now being developed.

Could make Comeback

If this were done, he felt Alberta's flagging coal industry could make a comeback despite competition from natural gas and oil.

"The price of Canadian coal is established on the basis of samples. The more accurate they are, the smaller will be the marketing problem."

Essentially the principle involved is to collect a larger number of incremental samples, with low- and gross weights, instead of only one large and often unwieldy sample," Dr. Visman said.

"It's well known that most of the arguments about quality start with a bad sample. The difficulty is that current specifications do not allow collection of small samples."

He stressed that marketing and production of coal was based largely on analytic results, which depended on accurate samples.

Dr. Visman's cyclonic atomizer now is being used in an Alberta briquetting plant. He said the result is improved production by more consistent blending of coal and asphalt binder.

The atomizer is operated by super-heated steam. Molten asphalt binder is poured into a six inch nozzle, where it is atomized into a fine brown mist. The mist blends with the coal, travelling below on a paddle conveyor.

He said the apparatus could be installed in any plant without fundamental changes of production processes and without a large capital outlay.

ABC hockey league elect Rushcall, Fernie, president

The Alberta - British Columbia intermediate hockey league will open its schedule on December 17 it was decided at the annual meeting of the league in Cranbrook on Sunday last week. The opening date is two weeks later than last season because Coleman Grands and the Michel Coal Kings depend on natural ice.

Leon A. Rushcall of Fernie, was elected president of the league, with Dick Furneaux, also of Fernie, as secretary-treasurer.

Club representatives on the league executive are: Coleman, J. Mozell; Cranbrook, Les DeArmond; Fernie, James Peetre; Creston, Michel and Kimberley will name their representatives following meetings of their own clubs.

For schedule purposes the league will be divided into two sections, an eastern, consisting of Fernie, Coleman and Michel; and a western, comprised of Creston, Cranbrook and Kimberley.

Each club will play two home and two away games, with clubs in its own section and one home and one away game with clubs of the other section.

The top four teams of the league will enter the playoffs.

The first team in the league standing will play the third in one semi-final while the second-place team will meet the fourth-place team in the other semi-final. Playoffs will be a best of three series.

The matter of referees created much discussion which ended in the decision that for all league games each contending club would provide a referee with the visiting arbitrator acting as chief referee of the game. League officials will name referees for playoff games.

Club entry fees were set at $10 payable before November 15. Each club will deposit a bond of $100 as evidence of good faith that it will fulfill its league obligations. In addition a small sum from each side of a league home game will be turned over to the league. Ten per cent of the home club's share of playoff gates is to be forwarded to the league treasurer.

The financial report as presented by retiring secretary-treasurer Dave Plint of Cranbrook, showed that receipts totalled $272.58 — made up of the balance from the previous season of $118.89, and current receipts of $153.69. Expenditures amounted to $137.70, leaving a balance of $110.88.

It was announced at the meeting that the Fernie 3300 Club was planning to hold a four-club invitational hockey tournament in Fernie around the beginning of February. The tournament would be held on a Saturday with two afternoon games and the final in the evening. It expected to invite two Alberta clubs, probably Lethbridge Allstars, and the Coleman Grands, and two B.C. clubs, Fernie and Kimberley Lesionaires, or Cranbrook. The 3300 club requested the ABC league to leave open a date in the schedule for the tournament event. The request was granted.

The offer of Ed Swanson of Cranbrook to act as a referee's umpire was accepted. The date for the school was set for November 6 at Cranbrook arena.

Children Commended By Police For Hallowe'en Behavior

Chief of Police E. Corson in a statement following Hallowe'en, stated that the children of Coleman are to be highly commended for the way they conducted themselves during the trick or treat evening. No damage had been reported. Very little soaping of windows was in evidence.

The chief stated further that he was indeed proud of all of these children and that all of Coleman should be happy as no damage was done and it showed the public that the children of this town could have fun without malicious pranks.

(Editor's Note): This is quite a contrast from reports from the neighboring towns where flagpoles, fences, broken bottles were strewn across roadways, and numerous other willful damage was done.

This paper also congratulates all of you Coleman children and sincerely hopes you will continue in years to come to repeat this fine record.

THANKS, COLEMAN YOUTH.

Four Pass Men Hurt In Freak Accident

BLAIRMORE — Hurricane velocity winds here Thursday resulted in a freak accident and the injury of four employees of the Western Canadian Collieries Ltd. Grassy Mountain strip mine.

Collins has good news for you. will be at the

Grand Union Hotel

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11th

No Appointment Necessary. Office Hours 12 noon to 9 p.m.

Reason for Baldness

Trichologist H. McLeod maintains that there is always a reason for baldness. "Hair cannot grow through a scalp that is infected with dandruff, excessive oiliness, or extreme dryness. A scalp that has never been exercised cannot be expected to produce healthy hair. No and yes, women too, walk the street today, completely devoid of nature's greatest ornament—hair. Simply because they were not taught the basic rules of hair and scalp hygiene while they were growing up. The simple answer is: children should be taught the same simple rules of hair and scalp hygiene that they are taught for the proper care of their teeth. If this were the case, baldness would be a rarity today."

Heredity Not Involved

"Mankind's unrealistic belief that baldness is hereditary stems from a misinterpretation of the theory of genetics. Theory does not state that any person must be bald because baldness exists in his family. What it does say is that in some families, a tendency exists towards an unimpaired scalp. The purpose of Jarred hair and scalp experts is to teach the methods of strengthening the scalp and nourishing it to healthy, vigorous condition. A healthy scalp will grow hair, if it is not already completely bald. assure Jarred trichologists."

Free Examination

You incur no charge or obligation by submitting to a scalp examination. Your only obligation is to yourself to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders by learning how the Jarred method can solve your trouble in a few minutes. If you are not satisfied, you will be told so. Jarred treatment, you will be told, is not a cure, but a remedy. You will be told, if you are not satisfied, you will be told so. Jarred treatment, you will be told, is not a cure, but a remedy. You will be told, if you are not satisfied, you will be told so.

Hope for the Completely Bald

In their travels throughout the United States and Canada, Jarred trichologists have collected hundreds of testimonies of their ability to develop weak hair into healthy, mature hair. All of their clients have started with a private analysis of their hair and scalp analysis. Jarred specialists are quick, however, to tell a hopeless case that there is no hope. Modern advertising is a necessity to hold and build business. Be proud of your business, of the goods you have to sell, of the services you have to offer in your particular line. Show the progressive spirit and the desire to serve by advertising. Do not hide your light under a bushel — proclaim far and wide who you are and what you have to sell and where your place of business is, for public memory is short, and advertising is a powerful aid to all types of businesses. Moreover, people as a general rule shop where they are invited.

PETER FRANCIS, 18-year-old Harvard University student who braved the treacherous rapids of the Dubawnt river in the Northwest Territories to rescue five of his canoeing companions, is shown as he arrived at Winnipeg on his way home. WHERE THERE'S WOOL, THERE'S A WAY—A way to publicize it, that is. TV actress Liza Ferraday finds it's easy to pull the wool over the eyes of Democratic Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney who hails from Wyoming, where sheep-raising is a major factor in the agricultural economy. Liza and pet lamb, "Wooley," pose with the Senator in front of the nation's Capitol before taking off on a cross-country tour in behalf of the nation's woolen goods industry.

Santa's helpers, the nation's toy manufacturers, are hoping that in-play tests such as this one will accurately indicate demand for toys as Santa prepares for the Christmas shopping rush.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

MISS SUSIE'S INDEPENDENCE

—By MARY G. SWINSON

IT WAS a shock to me, of course, to find Miss Susie Brown lying dead in her bed. But we had all expected it and talked it over with the church and county officials. There had to be a funeral of some sort and a place to put her.

Miss Susie had been a town institution all my life and my mother's life before me and it was just as natural that the town would feel a responsibility for burying her as it would for keeping the graves cut around the monument downtown.

Our town was a small one and, being off the big new national highways, it hadn't grown much during my lifetime and we were all pretty closely knit. The county did what it could for Miss Susie in her last years and the churches asked as regularly for donations for her as they did for foreign missions. It was lucky in the long run for Miss Susie, I guess, that she had no special church affiliation and they all contributed; although mama and I always suspected a Methodist persuasion. It was not a Baptist persuasion, we were Baptists and knew that.

When Miss Susie first came to our town as a young girl, nobody ever knew from where or why. She cooked for my grandmother. Grandma had a weakness for strays—dogs, cats and folks—but Miss Susie lasted the longest, three generations.

After Grandma died, Miss Susie's first real independence began and it was a heady draught. Selling religious books became her most thrilling adventure and the fact that we bought them only to support Miss Susie never seemed to slow up her desire for independence. Methodists, Baptists and Episcopalians alike bought her books and we strongly suspected that she spread her religious sympathies pretty carefully. I can remember sitting on the floor avidly thumbing the flamboyantly colored Bible pictures, watching her little "possum eyes flash and hearing her say to Mama: "Oh, Mary, it says here that as plain as the nose on your face that Jesus went down into the River Jordan and lifted up the water and poured it on 'em, but don't you never tell no Baptist I told you so 'cause they wouldn't buy my books."

It turned out that she was Mama's special care and worry after Grandma was gone and, I guess she must have had some of Grandma's feeling for strays too because Mama was the one who launched her on her most important career. Maybe Mama felt that if Miss Susie had to have her independence we might as well benefit from it. Anyhow, when I was a skinny-legged tomboy of seven or eight, when I recognized her flat-heeled, deliberate stride coming down the street and saw the big, deep box clutched tightly under an angular shoulder and sniffed peach blossoms in the air, I knew Spring had really come. We all dropped fascinating play to rush for the parlor; for there would be spread out linen laces, valencienes, fine damasks and colored rick-racks—things which pointed to Easter and party dresses and occasionally left-overs for doll dresses. Advice was handed out unasked and for the greater part unheeded, but I can always remember that the dominant part of it was: "Now, Sally, always be independent . . . you'll be thought more of, if you do." And I was years realizing that that same advice stood me in good stead.

The summer when Jack Davis came to visit my brother and I was 18, you'd have thought I'd have known better at that age, but I made the same calves' eyes and stuttered the same as the rest of the town girls did over him. We'd never seen a boy so handsome and gay. It was the time of the year when Miss Susie was taking orders for Christmas and I sat, dreamily by; one eye on the window with visions of broad, masculine shoulders and sparkling blue eyes running through my head. I sharp features reflecting shadows on tired, sunken cheeks: "Mary, all my girls is growing up 'round here and I'm sort of expecting to sell goods for a wedding dress about next Spring. But what gets me is how this young Jack fellow can pick any one of these town girls he'd happen to want. Now, if I was a young girl and liked him, I'd be independent."

Of course, I knew Miss Susie was old and foolish and, as far as we knew, had never had a beau in her life but it was a funny thing; after that, whenever Jack came to visit, I'd be independent.

Well, a couple of years later, Miss Susie began to fail. She was living over Watson's in a clean-scrubbed, bare room that the county paid for. The Baptists took her milk, the Methodists butter, and Mr. Watson gave her bread and other staples. Mama and I kept her in laces and the visiting ladies bought them. That kept Miss Susie's independence . . . and she kept her accounts in a little book that was always in a box on the foot of her bed. That was her business office and nobody was allowed to open that box. The day I'd told her about the baby coming next Spring, she got me to hand her the box and wrote down the kind of laces I'd need and had me put it carefully back in place.

Mama was so excited about preparations for the first grandchild that she almost forgot, to send Miss Susie's Christmas laces. "Sally," she said, "would those steps up to Miss Susie's be too much for you? The poor old soul will want to see you and talk over the baby's laces with you."

At first, I thought Miss Susie was asleep. Jack was worried afterwards for fear the shock had upset me too much, but it didn't . . . she looked so peaceful with a smile on her face and I guess happier than she had in life. I always thought so anyhow. I sent for Mama and the town ladies and they all sat around with genuine sorrow for Miss Susie. Then they got her pitiful possessions together.

By common consent, Mama was given the box at the foot of the bed to open. She spread out on the foot of the old iron bedstead, an old pin Grandma had given her, her account book, a small Bible and a Methodist hymn book. Then Mama read aloud some printing on the back of an old envelope.

It said: "This will keep me out of a pauper's grave." Inside was $600.00 in cash.

Some of the ladies at first looked indignant . . . "Living on charity all this time," they said. Others mostly looked pleased. That she had a treasured hymn book of her own made it seem a legitimate charity. She must have been a Methodist.

But Mama and I were both happy. Mama said: "I'm so glad about the baby's laces, Miss Susie'd like that. Sally, we'll get her a lot at the cemetery and buy her a nice headstone."

No wonder Miss Susie had a smile on her face; she'd kept her independence.

Queen aids gypsy leader

CARDIFF, Wales.—The Queen has come to the aid of Lydie Lee, 68-year-old gypsy leader who can neither read nor write.

The gypsy who lives in a trailer, has been faced with eviction from a common here where she has camped with her followers. One by one they have left her.

The old woman wrote to the Queen about it. Recently a housing ministry official knocked on the trailer door. He said the Queen has ordered Housing Minister Duncan Sanjays to look into her case.

The gypsy was given a letter from the Queen which asked her whether she wanted land for her family to live on permanently or land where they could camp periodically on their travels.

"All I want is a piece of land near Cardiff where I and my family can put our caravans and pay rent to live there," gypsy Lee said.

The Cardiff Corporation wanted to clear gypsies off the common to make playing fields there.

Half Canadian population gets yearly health care

More than half of the Canadian population gets medical treatment every year for everything from a major operation to a visit to a faith healer, according to a Canadian Press story from Ottawa.

The extent and variety of what is done for the nation's ailments was reported recently by the Bureau of Statistics in a further summation of findings of Canada's first country-wide study of illness. It showed 53.1 percent of Canadians get health care every year.

The Bureau did not divulge the extent of faith-healing practice, but it said 432 of every 1,000 Canadians see a doctor during any year, 102 spend some time in hospital and 11 receive home nursing care.

The statistics, and many more, were collected in a 1950-51 survey conducted by the Bureau and Federal and provincial health departments. Other findings on health expenditures and the extent of illness have been released previously.

Dental and eye care are included in the report. Some 147 of every 1,000 see their dentist and 33 of 1,000 are examined for glasses annually.

Women get the major share of every type of health care: 57.7 percent of all females compared with 48.6 percent of all males.

Healthiest age group apparently is that from 15 to 24 years with 69.1 percent getting health care, as against 52.3 percent of those under 15, 56.3 percent of those 25 to 44, 52.3 percent of those 45 to 64 and 54.1 percent of those over 65.

Some 56.8 percent of Canadians do not see their doctor or visit a clinic from one year's end to the next. An estimated 15.1 percent do so once a year and 8.1 percent do so twice.

There is an average 122 hospital stays for every 1,000 persons. The lowest average is the 55 per 1,000 for males of 15 to 24 years and the highest is the 185 per 1,000 for women 25 to 44—the main child-bearing age.

During the survey year some 510,000 persons—one in every 27 underwent an operation. The tonsils and adenoids of children give them the highest average of operations in a year—4.3 percent of those under 15.

Not counting school dental clinics, one Canadian in every seven receives dental care in a year including about 21 percent of those from 15 to 24 years.

Funny and Otherwise

In Charleston, South Carolina, when a census taker asked a man if he lived within his income, he replied with some dignity: "Certainly not. It is all I can do, sir, to live within my credit."

The male half of a new dance team was pleading with a producer.

"You never saw anything so sensational," he raved. "To finish our act, I take my partner by the hair and whirl her round for exactly 20 spins. Then I wind up by leaving her through an open window."

The producer paled. "Leave her through an open window?" he exclaimed, incredulously. "Do you do that at every performance?"

The young man shrugged. "Nobody's perfect," he admitted. "Sometimes I miss!"

The trainer of a horse that was never in the money called over a new jockey early one morning.

"This nag is going stale," he said. "He needs a stiff work-out. See what you can do with him."

"Yes, sir," said the jockey. "You want me to ride him round the track?"

The trainer sighed. "No," he corrected, "just run in front and pace him."

Junior Partner (to pretty typist): "Are you doing anything on Sunday evening, Miss Peterson?"

Typist (hopelessly): "No, not a thing."

"Then try to be at the office earlier on Monday, will you?"

ALBINO DUCK

One of nature's oddities, an albino duck, was shot south of Greenfield recently by Fred Switzer. Sparing the white duck with a flight of teal, Fred singled it out and shot it.

The duck, similar in size to a teal, has all-white feathers, while its bill and feet are a pale flesh color.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father and was radiant in a white ballerina length gown of lace and tulle featuring a full skirt and lace jacket with lily point sleeves. A heart shaped crown of lace held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of white mums. A necklace belonging to her grandmother was the bride's only jewellery. Miss Lorraine Olson, was her sister's only attendant and was gowned in a ballerina length dress of gold and silver brocade with tulle and matching accessories. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow mums.

The best man was Orion Walmisley, brother of the groom and the guests were ushered by Chuck Olson and Wayne Walmisley, brothers of the young people.

Following the ceremony the bride changed to a grey suit for the reception which was held at the home of the groom's parents in Coleman.

Tribute To Canada's Fighting Men

No finer tribute can be given to the men of Canada than from these words of General Sir Arthur Currie during the "Amiens Push, August, 1918":

"Looking back with pride on the unbroken record of your glorious achievements, asking you to realize that today the fate of the British Empire hangs in the balance, I place my trust in the Canadian Corps, knowing that where Canadians are engaged there can be no giving way. Under the orders of your devoted officers in the coming battle you will advance or fall where you stand facing the enemy. To those who fall I say

"You will not die but will step into immortality. Your mothers will not lament your fate. But will be proud to have borne such sons. Your names will be revered forever and ever, and God will take you unto Himself."

"Consentientes vi trahunt victoriam"—In Canadian means: when men among themselves agree 'tis then their strength brings victory.

It's a very poor practice for a busy person to gobble a sandwich and gulp a cup of coffee and then so right back to the job. This makes for fatigue and poor digestion. It is much better to eat a nourishing lunch and then walk for even a few minutes out of doors.
